

The Trilinear Plot is a representation of color balance and very useful in assuring that similar processors have the same color balance as well as being in control.